

A Healthy World begins with a Healthy Woman

SNEHA was started in 1999 by a group of doctors with a mission to improve the health of the most vulnerable women and children. Our team consists of doctors, public health professionals, bankers, anthropologists, social workers and researchers supported by a large community outreach team. Each year we directly impact about 60,000 women and children and indirectly impact over 7,50,000 people through our programs.

- SNEHA prides itself on working in partnerships with public health systems including hospitals, the Integrated Child Development Services, the Police and Free Legal Aid
- SNEHA's board and management teams are leading medical, public health, development and management professionals
- SNEHA won the CNBC TV 18 Award, the Vodafone Award and the Ahtesaab Foundation Award for its work on women's health
- SNEHA is evidence-driven and has University College London as full-time research partner and has publications in many peer reviewed Indian and International Journals including the Lancet, BioMed Central and PLoS
